VENDOR AGREEMENT:

Food products made from cloned animals and/or their offspring

In January 2008 the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) ruled that all food products, including milk and meat products from cloned animals and their offspring, are safe for human consumption and do not require labeling. PCC Community Markets disagrees with this decision and will not accept any products made with ingredients from cloned animals and their offspring.

By signing this document, you agree that you will not supply PCC Community Markets with any products derived from any cloned animals or their offspring. You also agree to notify PCC Community Markets immediately should you decide to include ingredients from cloned animals or their offspring in your products in the future.
